

June Newsletter: Father's day gifts

Hello!

Summer is here and we hope you are enjoying the beautiful weather. In case you forgot, Father's Day is coming up. There's not much time left... but if you haven't gotten Dad a gift yet, here are a few of our favorite tech suggestions.

All the best,

1. A new phone

Currently, the mobile industry is booming so phone choices are unlimited. At the top of our list are the HTC EVO 4G which runs Android 2.1 on Sprint or the HTC Droid which also runs Android 2.1 on Verizon. You could also wait (although Dad might be waiting awhile...with all of the pre-order madness and the announcement of another delay)... and give dad the iPhone 4G.

2. Phone accessories

Whether you have a dad that sits at home and watches TV after a long day or a rugged father who mountain climbs and kayaks... here are two very fitting accessories. The L5 remote turns any iPhone or iPad into a universal remote control. It allows for multiple remotes to be stored on your device so you can do away with the clutter of many different remotes. And for the father who is more interested in climbing Mt. Everest than watching someone do it on TV, there is the Magellan Toughcase for outdoorsmen. It is waterproof with a battery pack and a GPS receiver

3. A 3D TV

With the World Cup and other various sporting games now broadcast in 3D, what father isn't champing at the bit to own his own 3D television? Sony has just released several new 3D televisions that advertise the "right in the game experience" . This experience doesn't come cheap however... expect to pay over $2000 for one.

4. An iPad

We can't have a list without one... In spite of the abundance of press it is receiving, the iPad, with its growing app store, is a great gift for dads. Alternatively, if your father already has one, purchasing an iTunes gift card or a digital magazine subscription is also a great gift.

5. An eReader

With stiff competition in the eReader category, an Amazon Kindle will give you social networking abilities and a Nook will get you free coffee and free reading at any Barnes and Noble.

6. Windows 7 upgrade

If your Dad is still running Windows XP on his computer, purchase a Windows 7 upgrade for him. Now as stable as XP and with a better interface than any other Windows operating system... your dad will thank you every time he boots up.

7. Wii gaming system

With the American Heart Association awarding Wii Fit its heart healthy stamp of approval, giving your dad the gift of gaming and fitness is an ideal gift to keep him happy and healthy.

8. Powermat

A Powermat is the newest way to charge many devices at once without packing multiple cords. By putting an adapter on the back of a device and laying it on the Powermat... cell phones and iPods are magically charged.

9. The Rear View Mirror Bluetooth Speakerphone

For those who worry about their dads answering their cell phones while driving, this Bluetooth-enabled rear view mirror is a handy solution. It displays incoming calls and has a removable wireless headset that allows in ear use. With its ability to connect to any Bluetooth enabled phone, it lessens the dangers of talking while driving.

10. And last but not least... if your dad needs help setting up any of these wonderful gifts, you could always purchase Cartwheel hours for him... and we will get him up and running.
